GOVERNMENT'S RESPONSE TO
DEFENDANT HBAIU'S LETTER ATTACHED TO SENTENCING MEMORANDUM (Dkt.
Entry 413)

Sentencing Date: 02/11/2016
Sentencing Time: 8:30 a.m.
Place: Courtroom 750

GOVERNMENT'S RESPONSE TO DEFENDANT HBAIU'S LETTER ATTACHED TO SENTENCING MEMORANDUM (Dkt.Entry 413)

I. Introduction

Hbaiu's Sentencing Memorandum included a 12-page, single-spaced letter ("Letter") from Hbaiu. See Dkt. Entry 413. In this letter, Hbaiu made a number of mischaracterizations and misrepresentations. In this response, the government seeks to address—prior to

1 sentencing—a few of the most serious mischaracterizations and 2 misrepresentations.

3 In so doing, the government reiterates its recommendation,
4 contained in paragraph 5(g) of the plea agreement, that imposition
5 of a 24-month sentence of incarceration is appropriate in this case.
6 It is submitted, however, that Hbaidu's disingenuous description of 7 his background and the facts and circumstances of his criminal
8 conduct contained in his letter to the Court should not be the basis
9 for a sentence of anything less than 24 months.
10

11 II. HBAIU'S CREDIBILITY

12 The government first suggests that the representations and 13 characterizations contained in Hbaidu's letter to the Court must be 14 viewed in light of whether Hbaidu is a reliable source. In that 15 regard, Hbaidu's representations concerning his male enhancement
16 products were found not credible by Magistrate Judge Kenton in an 17 order that was filed at docket entry 137 in this case. Magistrate
18 Judge Kenton stated, in part, that Hbaidu's "representations
19 regarding manufacturing and distribution of his male enhancement
20 products are entirely without credibility". (Dkt. Entry 137, 8.)
21

22 III. HBAIU'S REPRESENTATIONS AND INFERENCES AS TO HOW HIS PRODUCT 23 BECAME TAINTED WITH THE ACTIVE PHARMACEUTICAL INGREDIENT.

24 A theme found throughout Hbaidu's letter to the Court is that 25 distribution of tainted male enhancement products under his label is 26 due to "counterfeiters" and that people returned counterfeit product 27 to his warehouse where it was inadvertently mixed with his 28

1 "legitimate" product. See Letter, 9-10.

2 As depicted in the attached Government Exhibit Number 1, law
3 enforcement agents made controlled purchases or otherwise acquired 4 Hbaidu's Mojo Nights, Lot #1MM0211, over a 14-month period. The 5 product was obtained throughout the United States—in Illinois,
6 Georgia, Pennsylvania, and California. In each instance, the 7 product tested positive for the active pharmaceutical ingredients.
8

9 Similarly, investigators made controlled purchases or otherwise
10 obtained samples Hbaidu's Libigrow Lot #791115 product line over a 11 nine-month period. Again, these products came from the wide-ranging 12 geographic area of Pennsylvania, Florida, and California and again
13 each sample was found to contain the active pharmaceutical 14 ingredients. See Government Exhibit 2.
15

16 During the period of the investigation, 17 different undercover
17 purchases were made that were traceable to Hbaidu's businesses,
18 either directly or through distributors tied directly to Hbaidu. All 19 male enhancement products tested positive for the presence of the 20 active pharmaceutical ingredient.

21 Perhaps most damning to Hbaidu's inference that counterfeiters
22 were at the root of his legal problems is the pills that were 23 packaged under the Kamasutra and Matador labels that were seized 24 from his warehouse in Commerce, California, on December 5, 2012. In 25 a document prepared by Matthew Rycyk for the FDA recall and attached
26 hereto as Government's Exhibit 3, Rycyk lists these products as 27
28

1 being manufactured and seized (by the government) but never
2 distributed.

3 Yet samples of these products, which had never been sold or 4 distributed to the public, also tested positive for the active
5 pharmaceutical ingredients. Such a result cannot be blamed on 6 "counterfeiters" because the products were never on the market.
7

8 IV. HBAIU'S CLAIM THAT HE WAS CONDUCTING A MASSIVE ALL-OUT RECALL
9 OF DIETARY SUPPLEMENTS.

10 Hbaidu hired Matthew Rycyk, a regulatory consultant (see 11 Government Exhibit 4), purportedly to conduct a recall of his 12 supplement products from the marketplace. He claims this occurred
13 in October 2012, prior to the search at the warehouse and Hbaidu's
14 arrest. See Letter, 9. Investigators interviewed Rycyk on two 15 separate occasions prior to Hbaidu's guilty plea. Rycyk was recently 16 contacted again by telephone. On each of these three occasions, 17 Rycyk stated that the topic of a recall did not come up until after 18 the warehouse was searched in December 2012. Further, investigators 19 found no evidence that Hbaidu contacted his direct customers to 20 return inventory before the voluntary recall through FDA was 21 announced on December 17, 2012.
22

23 The October 2012 time frame is significant, but not for a
24 recall that did not happen. Rather, on October 11, 2012, co-
25 defendant Abdallah Nada's business was inspected by FDA. Nada was 26 the exclusive distributor for Hbaidu's Mojo Nights product line.
27 Thus, Hbaidu knew it was important to appear to be non-complicit in 28

1 the evidence of criminal activity found at Nada's business.

2 A text from co-defendant Kang to Hbaidu dated October 15, 2012,
3 is further evidence that Hbaidu understood in October 2012 that he
4 needed to appear to be a legitimate business person. On October 15, 5 2012, Kang texted Hbaidu that "I told the guy at the factory to 6 prepare for visiting. Don't worry..." A copy of this text message is 7 attached hereto as Government's Exhibit 5.
8

9 Also during this same time frame, Hbaidu's sister ordered a 10 large amount of fencing materials that were to be picked up by 11 Chris Catone. See Government Exhibit 6. These materials were used 12 to build the "secret room" investigators discovered when the 13 searched Hbaidu's warehouse on December 5, 2012.
14

15 Hbaidu now claims that the "secret room" was used to store
16 product returned to his company, some of which was original and some 17 counterfeit. See Letter, 10. But several pieces of government
18 evidence refute this self-serving claim.

19 Moreover, the investigation has established that Hbaidu gave 20 conflicting accounts of what was to be contained in the "secret
21 room". Hbaidu told Catone, who partially constructed the "secret 22 room", that it was to be a "vault" where contraband/counterfeit
23 product was to be isolated. In contrast, Hbaidu told his production
24 manager Angelo Dia that product that was packaged and ready to be 25 shipped out should be maintained inside the secret room.
26

27 When investigators entered the room on December 5, 2012, it
28

1 contained packaging material and a station for packaging product.
2 The packaging material was similar to the packaging on the tainted
3 product agents purchased through the internet. This evidence
4 corroborates Dia's information that the room was used to store
5 product that was packaged and ready to be shipped out.

6
7 Searching agents did find several boxes clearly marked
8 "Counterfeit Do Not Sell." But these boxes were not found in the 9 "secret room"; they were found on the opposite side of the 10 warehouse. See Government Exhibit 7.

11 Finally, Hbaidu claims that FDA conducted two surprise
12 inspections on his facilities and his supplier's facilities in 2010
13 and 2011. Investigators have checked FDA records and found no
14 records of prior inspections on Hbaidu's facilities or his supplier's 15 facilities.
16

17 V. HBAIU'S CLAIM THAT AHED HBAIU FLED NOT TO AVOID PROSECUTION,
18 BUT TO PURSUE A NEW LIFE IN DUBAI.

19 In his letter to the Court, Hbaidu makes a number of 20 representations concerning his brother and co-conspirator Ahed
21 Hbaidu, who is a fugitive. Prominent among these representations is 22 that Ahed Hbaidu fled not to avoid apprehension, but to make a new 23 life for himself without being dogged by his criminal record. See 24 Letter, 8. He claims that Ahed Hbaidu arrived in Dubai weeks before 25 the Grand Jury returned a superseding indictment, which, for the 26 first time, included criminal charges against him in this case. See 27 Letter, 8.
28

Hbaidu's claim is belied by an e-mail from Ahed Hbaidu's counsel to the government that occurred February 26, 2013. In that communication, Ahed Hbaidu's counsel confirms that his client is not interested in cooperating with the government before a superseding indictment was considered by the grand jury. The government confirmed that Ahed Hbaidu left the country on Qatar Airlines out of Dulles Airport on March 5, 2013. The superseding indictment was returned by the Grand Jury on March 8, 2013. See MDPA Dkt. Entry 50.

VI. HBAIDU'S CLAIMS THAT HE CAME FROM AN IMPOVERISHED BACKGROUND AND THAT HE HAD NO POSITIVE RELATIONSHIP WITH HIS FATHER.

In his letter to the Court, Hbaidu repeatedly references his family's lack of financial resources. See Letter, 1-3. This claim, too, is contradicted by the evidence.

In April 2001, Hbaidu and Ahed Hbaidu were detained at Newark International Airport. Hbaidu carried a briefcase which contained $125,000 in U.S. currency, wrapped in 22 bundles. The currency was seized after Hbaidu and his brother gave conflicting accounts about the cash. Hbaidu had recently graduated from Dickinson College and Ahed Hbaidu was a student at Columbia at the time.

A month later, Ahed Hbaidu was arrested at JFK International Airport with $15,000 cash. He told law enforcement officials that Almontasser Hbaidu gave him the cash. In July 2001, Ahed Hbaidu was stopped in Kansas in possession of approximately 2,000 pounds of ketamine, a controlled substance. Ahed Hbaidu displayed Almontasser Hbaidu's identification during the stop. See MDPA Dkt. Entry 33.

1 As to Hbaidu's claim that he has no meaningful relationship with 2 his father, bank records establish that he and his father had a
3 jointly-titled bank account until that account was seized by law
4 enforcement agents in December 2012. See Government Exhibit 8.

5 The above-recited information contradicts Hbaidu's apparent
6 inference that his criminal conduct is mitigated by his impoverished
7 background and lack of a father figure.
8

9 VII. CONCLUSION

10 As previously argued, Hbaidu's misrepresentations and 11 mischaracterizations do not support a sentence that is less than the 12 sentence recommended by the parties. Rather, imposition of the 24-13 month sentence of incarceration negotiated and agreed to by the 14 parties, as well as $60,000 fine, three-year term of supervised
15 release, and $125 special assessment, is an appropriate disposition 16 in this case.
